Q: Google Calendar with recurring events - automatically open event I create an event in google calendar from script. Every time I add a new event the value of the recurrence option is set to Daily (rfc5545). I need to change this option to weekly or other option (for example - by default is 1 week then repeat every day). Can I change something in Google script to open events with this option in specific way? A: On Google Calendar v4.0+, setting a custom Recurrence Rule on an event will prevent recurring events from automatically repeating on the day of your choice (as described in the previous answers, see screenshot below). So for your scenario, you could make all your events start on Mondays, then set a custom Recurrence Rule and make the custom rule only apply to those events, as described in the documentation. You will need to do this at least once for each event, but not every time you create an event. The documentation explains how to: Listen for CalendarApp.addEvent() and CalendarApp.removeEvent() using event triggers. Create a custom event trigger. Use of calendar event triggers means that all calendar event creation functionality is now triggered by the code you write. This is done in a client-side service, so you don't have to rely on the server to trigger this functionality: function createRecurringEvent() { var calendar = CalendarApp.getCalendarById("yourCalendarId"); // other code // Trigger the calendar event creation CalendarApp.getRemindersForEvent(eventName).create(info); // Uncomment this to see all event details, including recurring events // var event = calendar.events.get(event_id); // alert(event.title + " " + event.startTime + " " + event.endTime); } Q: How to refactor complex code into simpler component? I'm relatively new to the following languages. I've read documentation and tutorials related to both, Java, JavaScript. I'm doing a project where I'm supposed to convert a complex application into a simpler one. So I'm pretty new to these languages. I want to know how to implement different functions and introduce new modules/classes to achieve more functionality (like more user friendly interface). I should implement the following code into a single user friendly

Woodlawn Cemetery Woodlawn Cemetery, located in Saratoga Springs, New York, USA, is Saratoga's largest cemetery, and the oldest in Saratoga County. It is an affiliate of the New York Cremation Society, and operated by the Woodlawn Cemetery Corporation. A Neo-Gothic-style chapel is planned in due course. History In 1830, the Woodlawn Cemetery Company was established, and the cemetery was begun in 1836. William J. O'Brien was appointed acting superintendent of the cemetery in May 1836, and he was appointed as the official superintendent in June 1837. O'Brien built the cemetery's first chapel in 1842. The original cemetery was enclosed by a stockade fence, and O'Brien organized the work of building bridges over the Genesee River. In 1851, the Woodlawn Cemetery Company sold six acres of land for $8,000 for the creation of Old Woodlawn Cemetery. Since its establishment, the cemetery has had a special area devoted to the burial of those who died of yellow fever in Saratoga Springs and the surrounding area. In the early 20th century, the cemetery accepted African-American graves; however, interment of African-Americans in the cemetery was made difficult by restrictive covenants in the cemetery's deeds, which prevented non-whites from purchasing burial lots in the cemetery. By 1847, the cemetery was burying 7,200 people annually. By 1850, the cemetery's burial lot system had proved its worth, and the company was able to sell 160 acres of land in the cemetery. The cemetery was noted for its beauty and convenience, and most people living in Saratoga Springs wished to be buried there. In 1864, the cemetery was incorporated as a separate corporation, and it began selling its services to those not buried there, and was able to raise the funds to construct a burial vault, which was opened in 1881. In 1901, the city of Saratoga Springs took over the cemetery's maintenance, and the cemetery obtained a permit to hold more funeral services. In 1911, a new cemetery building was constructed, and the burial vault was enclosed. By the early 20th century, the cemetery was described as the "most beautiful and cherished resting place in Saratoga" and by then contained 1,000 plots, two mausoleums, a mansion for the superintendent, and a gymnasium. In 1920, the
