Estimation of entropies of samples from probability distributions by maximum likelihood estimation.

A: There are a lot of approximations, but here is one that uses only the first two moments of the relevant probability distributions:
$$-\text{Akaike information} = 2 \log \left( \frac{\left( \mu_1 + \mu_2 \right)^2}{\mu_1 \mu_2} \right) + \left( 1 - \frac{\mu_2}{\mu_1} \right)$$

And in other news... From the planet Wut Like everyone else, I've been following the news and analysis of what's going on with COVID-19, the disease caused by the novel coronavirus that's gone from mere cause for concern to a global pandemic. It's certainly no exaggeration to say that the world has changed in the past week, but it's also true that the news is arguably back to normal, at least as far as we can tell so far. That's good. I've been worried about the broader economic damage that might come from the shutdown, but so far it doesn't look like it's anywhere close to happening. And meanwhile, I'm able to avoid getting sick myself! If you're like me, there are a lot of people around you who don't have that luxury. There's still work to do, obviously, so much as we all focus on the immediate future, I'm very much inclined to try to focus more on the immediate future. Even 3e33713323
