Chris Dodd (D-Conn.) is one of the wealthiest members of Congress after a lifetime of service. But the legendary Connecticut Democrat — who has been in and out of rehab numerous times for an addiction to prescription painkillers and other substances — can't get a job as a security guard. Dodd, who went to work for News Corp. following his retirement from the Senate in 2013, was among the highest-paid federal officials at the time. The media company hired Dodd, a former presidential candidate, as vice president of communications and public affairs in the fall of 2013, according to his LinkedIn page. Dodd resigned from the post in May of 2014. It was not a great time for Dodd — he was facing criminal charges for a billing scandal. He plead guilty to the charges in October 2015. News Corp. paid Dodd $2 million per year in the lucrative government job, a source with direct knowledge of the deal told us. After his resignation from News Corp., Dodd landed a job as a reporter for CBS. But not long after he accepted that position, he again found himself dealing with a scandal. In April of last year, the Justice Department announced a sweeping indictment against Hollywood producer Harvey Weinstein. The charges — racketeering, sex trafficking, conspiracy and more — stem from his decades of alleged sexual misconduct. Dodd began covering the trial for CBS, but never actually covered the trial itself, according to the New York Times. In May, Dodd announced he was leaving CBS to launch a new tech start-up called "Morell TV." But in June, the FBI raided the offices of Morell, seizing documents. The same month, Morell's website went dark. In August, Dodd's wife, Susan, filed for divorce. The couple have been married since 1975. In the fall of 2016, Dodd received a plea deal from the federal government. He was charged with financial crimes related to his work on behalf of clients who asked for assistance in hiding more than $1.4 million in offshore accounts. According to court records, Dodd and his law firm, Quadriano & Schwartz, "accepted a referral for approximately $460,000 in personal services

What's New in the?

PDFrizzator is a lightweight Windows application designed specifically for helping you generate PDF files using multiple PDFs and other types of items (e.g. GIF, JPG, PNG, TIF, CBR, CBZ). This tool can be used for merging multiple PDF items or converting other files to PDF file format. Clean feature lineup The primary panel is divided into three working areas, which allow to you quickly access the files and folders that are stored in your computer and select the ones that you want to process, preview the PDF files or other types of items supported by the program, as well as configure several parameters related to metadata and page layout. Uploading files and altering the page layout PDFrizzator gives you the possibility to drag and drop the files directly into the primary panel. Plus, you may perform search operations on the Internet for downloading images via various providers (e.g. Bing, Google, Picasa, Flickr), and select the desired size (e.g. medium, small, large), layout (all, square, wide, tall), and color (full color, black and white). What's more, you are allowed to zoom in or out of the current page, flip or rotate the image, as well as crop portions from the current photo. Additionally, you may insert blank pages, move the selected page to the desired position using the drag-and-drop support, delete items, as well as add new scanned files via TWAIN devices. Document and page tweaks PDFrizzator allows you to provide details about the title, subject, author, and keywords, and configure several parameters related to the page layout, such as orientation, size, transition effects, rotation angle, and deskew angle. Bottom line All things considered, PDFrizzator comes bundled with a decent suite of features useful if you want to create PDF presentations. The intuitive layout makes it an ideal app for rookies and professionals alike.If we're going to talk about the way cities feel, I can't help but think of Toronto. Like a lot of towns and cities I've visited, Toronto is a place where life spills out of the houses into the streets, and where streets themselves feel a little dangerous to walk down. City streets, by the way, are never designed to be safe places to be. Even the most mundane, well-lit, and carefully-mapped city street is a place where someone might suddenly run into you. And if you're a pedestrian in the middle of the night, there is never any guarantee that your route home will be safe. Now, when I walked home one night recently, the feeling of danger was certainly there — but it was also everywhere. I walked past people with their faces in their phones, through sidewalks piled with beer cans, and past groups of guys who would never be seen in the daytime. I
