I've had discussions with the judge, I've had discussions with their lawyer and I've made it clear that there's no confidence in the way that this young man was treated and how he's been treated since the time of his arrest. So, I guess, that was it. After this evidence on November 30, 1992, the hearing was convened on December 1. At this point, there had been testimony from two police officers, who identified Pelletier as the driver. Additionally, the arresting officer, Rowley, had testified that he had checked all the rooms in the motel at the time of Pelletier's arrest. On the basis of this testimony, the court convicted Pelletier on three counts of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.[7] Pelletier was sentenced to jail for ninety days on each of the three charges and ordered to pay a fine of $50 for each count. Pelletier appealed his conviction to the Court of Appeals for the State of Maryland. He raised two arguments, the first of which was that the evidence was insufficient to support the conviction. The Court of Special Appeals reversed the trial court's judgment of conviction, holding that "the presence of Pelletier's [closed] bottle of wine in the back seat and the presence of a clear glass of wine in the glove compartment, together with some empty beer bottles and the strong odor of alcohol from the back seat, were sufficient to provide some circumstantial evidence of intoxication." Pelletier v. State, 74 Md.App. 356, 355 A.2d 589 (1976). *1219 The second issue in the case was whether the trial court had erred in allowing Trooper Rowley to testify that he had checked the rooms in the motel at the time of Pelletier's arrest. The Court of Special Appeals reversed the conviction on this issue. On review, this Court remanded to the Court of Special Appeals "for reconsideration in light of Day v. State, 337 Md. 541, 655 A.2d 360 (1995)." The Court of Special Appeals then directed that the Court of Appeals "reconsider the question of the admissibility of Trooper Rowley's testimony that he checked the motel
